To whom do we address this letter? Given that the city is the mind-changer and we're OK with a new NOI explaining the revised steps for NEPA, who's left? Cliff Slater, perhaps, but maybe for the public in general or some other audience I can't think of.

A letter. However, we didn't change our minds, the city staff changed their minds, and our procedures are flexible enough to accommodate their revised approach. Why shouldn't the burden be on city staff to explain why they changed their minds?

Joe,

As Honolulu's city council considers the AA and raises questions about where the DEIS is, should we issue a letter, federal register notice or both to let everyone know that we changed our mind since the NOI and that we will be going out with a new NOI with a different process?
