OK, understood, so we don't meet on the forecasting issues. But would you still like to meet on Monday for a quick update on the project? I will be on my way from Colorado anyway after attending Railvolution in Miami. For me, it's such a good opportunity to chat with you without traveling to DC. Mark and I can be there before noon and meet at the region office if you are available.

Toru,
Jim tells me that he doesn't need a meeting on any of the forecasting calibration or validation efforts as he can do that over the phone with the consultant. He does think a meeting would be productive when the forecasts are done and the quality control work has been completed but that will be later. So I don't see a need to meet in SF in November.
