

Toru Hamayasu graduated from Farrington HS and UH Engineering. He is the chief transportation planner for the city's Department of Transportation Services. He is a registered professional engineer in Hawaii and currently heads the City's fixed guideway project. Toru had participated in all of the past major transit projects that started in the early 1970's. He was the planning manager for the 1992 rapid transit project and the project manager for the Bus Rapid Transit project in 2004. Toru authored papers in the Transportation Research Board on bus capacity and transit fare elasticity.