This may not be useful, and if it isn't, ignore it.

I tried to mark up the PANYNJ stipulations as I suggested you should do, and I quickly realized the problem you were having with the term "cumulative effect." I dropped it in the attached in favor of "indirect effect," as you suggested made more sense and I agree. I don't know if my focus on "building permits and demolition permits" will work in Honolulu, but that focus seems to be more tangible and explicit in addressing exactly the SHPO's concern.

p.s. Homeless people living under the guideway is not an adverse effect on historic property, in my book.
