Subject: Article in Hawaii Reporter

Hi Doug,

I'm so sorry I missed your meeting last week, sounds like it was a tremendous success based on your Hawaii Reporter article. I am a Mililani resident and happen to be working on the Mass Transit analysis project for the City and County. I am a planner for the primary consultant on the project, Parsons Brinckerhoff.

I would like to offer to you and anyone you may feel is interested an update on the Honolulu High-Capacity Transit Corridor project.

As a Mililani resident who commutes to the Central Business District for work via TheBus, I know there are quite a few existing transit riders and people have lots of interest in how the GET dollars will be spent. I realize there is also interest in how this project will fit in with other infrastructure changes and improvements over the next few years. And, based on your article, it is clear that you are interested in this project and (thankfully) the rest of the Central Oahu development.

I would like to offer a purely informational presentation to give you the most up-to-date information regarding the progress of the project. I may also be able to answer questions that may otherwise be hard to find direct answers.

I realize this project is controversial for some. The project team as a whole wants to give the public as much information as they need to make decision on what solution should be implemented through this project. Of course, that final decision must be communicated to each citizens' respective city councilmember when the time comes (November - December '06).

If I can answer any questions or provide any information to you now or in the future, please let me know.

Thank you for all your efforts to support intelligent growth in Central Oahu!

Sincerely,
Jennifer
